What is trauma-informed care, what is trauma-specific treatment, and what do they have to do with you? If you have any contact with children, adolescents, and their families - as part of your profession or your volunteer work - they have absolutely everything to do with you. Whether you work or volunteer for the state or county, for a non-profit, or for the private sector, you belong in this training. A better day is coming for every traumatized child and adolescent in South Carolina. We invite you to be part of the change.

This training is open to all community partners, including frontline service providers, family court professionals, school administrators, school teachers, guidance counselors, faith-based professionals, law enforcement officers, providers of pediatric medical care, mentors, childcare providers, and individuals who volunteer with children and adolescents. We need the involvement of the entire community to create a culture shift in South Carolina.

Participants will:

- 1) be provided with and will receive training on The Core Competencies of Trauma-Informed Care for Agencies and Organizations in South Carolina That Serve Children, Adolescents, and Their Families. This framework has been adopted by the South Carolina Joint Council on Children and Adolescents.
- 2) receive a detailed explanation of the standards, relevant to trauma, to be expected in terms of knowledge, values and attitudes, communication, practice, organizations and systems, and communities.
- 3) be given the model for how we all in South Carolina – individuals, professionals, stakeholders, and communities - will respond to children, adolescents, and families who have encountered traumatic events.

* 5.0 social work contact hours will be provided. *
CEU documents will only be distributed on site after the training is complete.
